Manager's Commentary

The Viet Nam Index is rallying with global markets in October as foreign investors break a six-week net selling streak, but also in response to the completion of negotiations on the Trans-Pacific Partnership ("TPP") trade agreement, of which Vietnam is expected to be the major beneficiary should all 12 countries manage to get the treaty ratified by their respective legislatures. Whether or not those debates are ultimately successful the deal has already focused attention on the reasons WHY Vietnam would benefit, which include Vietnam's strong macroeconomic environment and dramatically improved infrastructure as well as the fact that its cheap labour force will underline Vietnam's attractions as a manufacturing base for those wanting to export at low to no tariffs to other TPP members.

We have commented extensively this week on progress (or rather the lack thereof) in implementing the removal of foreign ownership limits, and would point you in the direction of the Fund's Interim Report to 30 June 2015 if you haven't already seen it (<http://pxpm.com/our-products/#vietnam-emerging-equity-fund>). Always a riveting read, if we say so ourselves.
