Manager's Commentary

A half-decent year in the sense that the Fund's NAV finished the year up by just over half the 22.5% that it had risen YTD on 28 September 2016, but a major disappointment in terms of relative performance, by having failed to outperform the benchmark VNI for the first time since 2010. Our apologies, and we will do our best to ensure that it won't happen again. Whilst we do not present it in order to provide an excuse, it is perhaps mildly interesting to note that 41.78 points of the index's 85.84 point gain in 2016 came from the combined contribution of SAB (IPO in early 2008, listed on 6 December 2016; up 52% by year-end) and ROS (see November 2016 Newsletter for our views on that particular travesty): take that out and the VNI would have been up 6.26% in US dollars, with Vinamilk (VNM) the second-highest contributor to the year's adjusted gain. Nonetheless we hope for a better 2017.
