Manager's Commentary

The Fund's second down month of 2017 (following a negative 0.06% in April) was arguably overdue on the back of two very strong months of Net Asset Value performance, although the VNI recovered in time to close July at a fresh 8 ½ year high. Foreign flows continue to influence investor sentiment whilst the market is now presumably providing sufficient breadth to enable a degree of rotation by offshore investors; a welcome improvement in the investment environment.

One cloud we notice gathering on the horizon (assuming that the two spoiled children threatening to throw their nuclear weapons out of the pram are restrained by less muddled heads before we're all consigned to the annals of never-to-be-read history) concerns the fallout (excuse the pun) from the recent offshore activities of Vietnam's secret service. Whilst it could be argued that senior quasi-government officials should be aware of the penalties for (allegedly) raiding the till and therefore tacitly accepting of such a fate, (allegedly) kidnapping a foreign national (even of your own country) under the asylum seeking protection of a sovereign state an influential party to a free trade treaty that is not yet fully ratified may turn out to have been a touch ill-advised. The FT and Nikkei Asian Review seem most on the ball with the story.
