

Newsletter

A Cayman-domiciled mutual fund with twice-monthly liquidity. The primary investment objective of the Fund is to seek long-term capital appreciation of its assets by investing in a portfolio of the equity securities of Vietnamese companies.

Manager's Commentary

The market delivered a salutary lesson in not getting cocky in October after we had self-lauded over-hauling the VNI's 2018 YTD performance at the end of September. Whilst we doubt that was the primary motivation for the precipitous fall over the course of the month and may, in fact, have had more to do with the pressure from external factors exacerbated by domestic margin calls, the Fund's NAV took a severe pounding to the extent that a month with 4% out-performance relative to the benchmark was followed by one of 3% under-performance. The year is not, of course, over until it's over but we take scant comfort from having been right about 2018 being a year of heightened volatility.

We have been pounding the streets in both Asia and the United States in recent weeks, hopefully getting the message across that Vietnam remains an attractive investment destination once the dust of the fallout from the trade wars has settled and investors are once again willing to discriminate between markets. We have perhaps begun to see the first signs of that this week, with weakness in the US largely ignored in Vietnam. The investment case in short: a strong macroeconomic background supported by decent earnings growth at least this year and next delivers the prospect of a firm market into the year end, with the potential kicker of speculation from early 2019 regarding MSCI Emerging Market Index watch-list inclusion in the lead-up to the June announcement. Consultation on the draft Securities Law has been open and inclusive on the part of the State Securities Commission and we remain optimistic that the law will improve the investment landscape in a meaningful way.

Keen observers will notice a different format for this month's Newsletter; we would welcome your views as to whether or not the new layout is an improvement on the old.
